VICTORIA C. WOODHULL

A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

by Theodore Tilton

Published at the Office of the Golden Age, 9 Spruce St.: New York, NY, 1871; small 8vo., original printed wrappers; pp. [1-3], 4-35, [1]. $7,500

First and only edition, published shortly after "Mrs. Woodhull announced herself as a candidate for the presidency - mainly for the purpose of drawing public attention to the claims of woman to political equality with men." (p. 28)

Tilton writes of "the memorable document now known in history as 'The Memorial of Victoria C. Woodhull' - a petition addressed to Congress, claiming under the Fourteenth Amendment the right of women as of other 'citizens of the United States' to vote in 'the States wherein they reside' - asking, moreover that the State of New York, of which she was a citizen, should be restrained by Federal authority from preventing her exercise of this constitutional right ... Nothing doubting, but much wondering, she took the novel demand to Washington, where, after a few days of laughter from the shallow-minded, and of neglect from the indifferent, it suddenly burst upon the Federal Capitol like a storm, and then spanned it like a rainbow. She went before the Judiciary Committee, and delivered an argument in support of her claim to the franchise under the new Amendments, which some who heard it pronounced one of the ablest efforts which they had ever heard on any subject. She caught the listening ears of Senator Carpenter, Gen. Butler, Judge Woodward, George W. Julian, Gen. Ashley, Judge Loughridge and other able statesmen in Congress, and harnessed these gentlement as steeds to her chariot...

Assisted by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Paulina Wright Davis, Isabella Beecher Hooker, Susan B. Anthony, and other staunch and able women whom she swiftly persuaded into accepting this construction of the Constitution, she succeeded, after her petition was denied by a majority of MR. TILTON'S ACCOUNT OF MRS. WOODHULL.

"He that utlereth a shander is a fool."

—Solomon: Prov. x. 18.

I shall swiftly sketch the life of Victoria Claffin Woodhull; a young woman whose career has been as singular as any heroine's in a romance; whose ability is of a rare and whose character of the rarest type; whose personal sufferings are of themselves a whole drama of pathos; whose name (through the malice of some and the ignorance of others) has caught a shadow in strange contrast with the whiteness of her life; whose position as a representative of her sex in the greatest reform of modern times renders her an object of peculiar interest to her fellow-citizens; and whose character (inasmuch as I know her well) I can portray without color or tinge from any other partiality save that I hold her in uncommon respect.

In Homer, Ohio, in a small cottage, white-painted and high-peaked, with a porch running round it and a flower garden in front, this daughter, the seventh of ten children of Roxana and Buckman Claffin, was born September 23d, 1838. As this was the vear when Once.

In Homer, Ohio, in a small cottage, white-painted and high-peaked, with a porch running round it and a flow-er garden in front, this daughter, the seventh of ten children of Roxana and Buckman Claffin, was born September 23d, 1838. As this was the year when Queen Victoria was crowned, the new-born babe, though clad neither in purple nor fine linen, but comfortably swaddled in respectable poverty, was immediately christened (though without chrism) as the Queen's namesake; her parents little dreaming that their daughter would one day aspire to a higher seat than the English throne. The Queen, with that early matronly predilection which her subsequent life did so much to illustrate, foresaw that many glad mothers, who were to bring babes into the world during that coronation year, would name them after the chief lady of the earth; and accordingly she ordained a gift to all her little namesakes of Anno Domini 1838. As Vic-

the Judiciary Committee, in obtaining a minority report in its favor, signed jointly by Gen. Benj. F. Butler of Massachusetts and Judge Loughridge of Iowa. To have clutched this report from Gen. Butler - as it were a scalp from the ablest head in the House of Representatives - was a sufficient trophy to entitle the brave lady to an enrolment in the political history of her country. She means to go to Washington again next winter to knock at the half-opened doors of the Capitol until they shall swing wide enough asunder to admit her enfranchised sex." (pp. 28-30)

Chipping at spine; text especially clean and fresh. [Book # 134689]

If we admit that the truth it has taught, as an offset to its many errors, has been one of the factors in civilization, we shall concede all that can be fairly claimed. The prolonged slavery of woman is the darkest page in human history; and she has touched the depths of misery since in Bethlehem the Magi gathered round the child in the manger, who was hailed as the Saviour of mankind. But the life and teachings of Jesus, all pointing to the complete equality of the human family, were too far in advance of his age to mould its public opinion. We must distinguish between the teachings attributed to Jesus and those of the Christian Church. One represents the ideal the race is destined to attain; the other, the popular sentiment of its time.

because of the various steps of progress in education, science, invention and art, woman is now more fully the equal of man in these countries than in any other aution or period the world. And yet the old ideas taught by the Church in the Dark Ages, the more keenly they feel every invisious distinction based on ex. To the conversant with the history of the Christian Church and the growth of the canon law, it may seem a startling assertion; but it is, nevertheless, true that the Church has does more to degree dewoman than all other adverse influences put together. And it has done more to degree dewoman than all other adverse influences put together. And it has done home to depend woman than all other adverse influences put together. And it has done this by playing on the religious emotions (the strongest feelings of her nature) to her own complete subjugated woman than all other adverse influences put together. And it has done for the dependence of the reader of the feelings of her nature) to her own complete subjugated how holds some women in the Turkish seragios, others in polygamy under the Mormoul the coracy, and others in the Christian Churches, in which, while rich women help to build and support them, they may not speak, or vote or enjoy any of the honors conferred on men, and all alike are taught that their degradation is of divine ordination, and thus their natural declines of self-respectare held in aboyance to what they are taught to believe is God's will. Out of the dectrine of original sin grow the orimes and miscrice of assectioism, cellules, and wothers, woman becoming the helpness victim of all the delusions generated in the brain of man.

The only separate printing of this essay, which first appeared in the Boston periodical, the Index, 1885. In it, Stanton concludes:

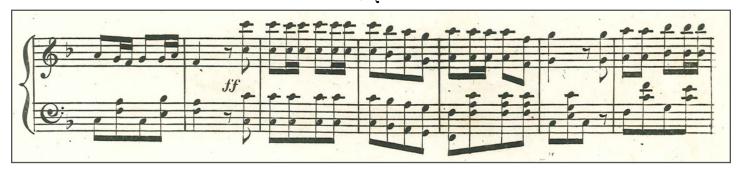

"We do not burn the bodies of women to-day; but we humiliate them in a thousand ways, and chiefly by our theologies. So long as the pulpits teach woman's inferiority and subjection, she can never command that honor and respect of the ignorant classes needed for her safety and protection. There is nothing more pathetic in all history than the hopeless resignation of woman to the outrages she has been taught to believe are ordained by God."

Stanton's The Woman's Bible, first published in 1895 (and of which far more copies are recorded than Stanton's Christian Church and Women) is now considered a landmark document in the history of woman's rights. At the time of its publication, however, the National American Woman Suffrage Association (of which Stanton had served as its first president), after active debate at its annual convention, distanced itself from both the work and its author, and adopted a resolution that, "This association is non-sectarian, being composed of persons of all shades of religious opinion, and has no official connection with the so-called 'Woman's Bible' or any theological publication." This resulted in Stanton becoming marginalized in the woman's rights movement for the remainder of her life. [Book # 134691]

CALIFORNIA QUICK STEP. INTRODUCING THE POPULAR AIR OF UNCLE NED. ARRANGED BY EDWARD L. WHITE.

Published by Oliver Ditson, 115 Washington Street: Boston, MA, 1849; folio, self paper wrappers; [2] pages, on two leaves; leaves separated at spine. $500

Melody Used by Permission of Mr. W. C. Peters, Proprietor of the Copyright. Entered according to Act of Congress AD. 1849 by Oliver Ditson in the clerk's Office of the District Court of Mass. Only the slightest hint of foxing / soiling, else a fine copy.

OCLC locates eight copies under two record numbers (OCLC 367615422: Yale University; Middle Tennessee State University; Brigham Young University; OCLC 22354465: University of Pittsburgh; Peabody Essex Museum; University of Cincinnati; UC Berkeley; California Historical Society). An example is also at the Homestead Museum, Los Angeles. From "The Homestead Blog" (online):

"One of several Gold Rush inspired sheet music pieces from the Homestead Collection, 'California Quick Step,' by Edward L. White, a Boston composer and teacher, was published by Oliver Ditson, also of Boston, and tnered in the Library of Congress in March 1849. The melody of 'California Quick Step' was based on 'Uncle Ned' or 'Old Uncle Ned,' a well-known song in what is generally now termed as African American Vernacular English from famed composer Stephen C. Foster that appeared in 1848. As a quick step, however, it was in a much faster tempo than the ballad of Foster's piece."

Exceedingly scarce in commerce: Rare Book Hub contains just a single record for an example having appeared at auction or in the trade, in 1979 (Randle and Windle). [Book # 134692]

SANTA FE SONG

by [Harry] Williams & [Egbert] Van Alstyne

Jerome H. Remick: New York, NY, (1910); small folio, self paper wrappers; 4, [2] pages. $350 Especially fresh and crisp; minor edge wear. Very Scarce; OCLC locates 5 copies (under 3 record numbers).

First lines of verse: "Down on the plains of burning sand - There lived a daring cowboy gay, No braver lad lived in the land - Thank wild and wooly Pat O'Day, But each night when the stars were bright, For a year he used to call, On a maiden sweet and small, But he made no love at all...

Chorus: Come on, you Cow-boy, to old San-ta Fe, Take me a-way, Swing in that Sad-dle, we'll ske-dad-dle. Take me, and make me your Mis-sus O'Day. Sure I'll b your bride, If you'll on-ly ride To Old San-ta Fe.

Following Santa Fe Song is "Santa Fe / Quartette for Male or Mixed Voices" (also copyright MCMX, by Remick). [Book # 134693]

SAN FRANCISCO - CALIFORNIA.

by A. Rouargue Del.

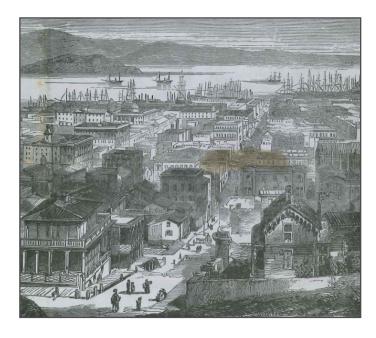

Published by Henry Payot, 184, Washington Street: San Francisco, CA, n.d. (but c. 1860-1867); oblong folio, broad-side; wood engraving 5-5/16 x 19-1/4, printed across a double sheet measuring 7-7/8 x 21-3/16, blue wove paper. $3,500

Panoramic view looking east down Sacramento Street from Nob Hill, with several Chinese at left; Telegraph Hill at left in distance. Probably made from a photograph; several misunderstandings as a result. (This was used for Baird 317; one copy of Baird 235 at California Historical Society has date of January 12, 1867, suggesting that the 1860 date on Baird 317 may not be actual date of publication.) See also Baird 236.

Some staining throughout, but mostly to the edges. Overall a lovely copy of an incredibly rare piece.

Copy at UC Berkeley. [Book # 134694]

THE FIRST PHOTOGRAPHS OF THESE ICONIC SCENES TO BE PRINTED IN COLOR

YOSEMITE VALLEY, GENERAL VIEW [53003] with EL CAPITAN, YOSEMITE VALLEY [53013]

(by William Henry Jackson)

Detroit Photographic Co.: Detroit, MI, 1898; 6.75 inches by 9 inches, two mounted photographs on thick card paper.. $4,500

Pair of photochrom photographs. Both photographs are in near fine condition with only the slightest hint of chipping along the edge of the photograph featuring the iconic Yosemite Valley, General View. The photochrom is a color photo lithograph created from a black and white photographic negative. Color impressions are achieved through the application of multiple lithograph stones, one per color. The process was developed in Switzerland and brought to the United States by the Detroit Publishing Company in 1897, which acquired exclusive ownership and rights to the process in America. Anticipating the success of the photochrom for the mass production of color prints, the Detroit Publishing Company recruited William Henry Jackson to become a partner. Jackson joined the company in 1898 as president, bringing with him an estimated 10,000 black and white negatives which provided the core of the company's photographic archives, from which they produced pictures ranging in size from postcards to enormous panoramas. In 1903, Jackson became the plant manager. After a decline in sales during World War I, and with the introduction of new and cheaper printing methods used by competing firms the company was forced into receivership in 1924, and in 1932 its assets were liquidated. In 1936, Edsel Ford purchased Jackson's negatives for "The Edison Institute" (now Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Michigan), and Jackson's negatives eventually were divided between the Colorado Historical Society and the Library of Congress.

We locate no record of holdings of either of these images. (No record found in the Library of Congress (which has four other views of Yosemite); the "William Henry Jackson Photochrom Collection, 1989-1908" at Amherst College (444 images); "The W. H. Jackson Photochrom Print Collection, 1898-1096" at the Newberry Library (which has two other views of Yosemite); or the "William Henry Jackson Photochrom Collection" at Decker Library, Maryland Institute College of Art, Baltimore (187 images)). Another sizable holding is at the Huntington Library (approximately 700 photolithographic prints, and 5,300 postcards), acquired in 2006 but yet to be catalogued. [Book # 134695]

On January 23, the House of Representatives introduced "An Act making compensation to Messrs. Lewis and Clarke, and their companions," and on that same date received communications on "Gratuities to the officers and men in the expedition to the Pacific Ocean, under Lewis and Clarke." After subsequent debates and reports with amendments, on February 28, the House of Representatives passed as amended "An Act making compensation to Messrs. Lewis and Clarke, and their companions," and on March 3, upon passage by the Senate, President Thomas Jefferson signed it into law. [Book #134696]

A BIBLIOGRAPHY AND ESSAYS

by Stephen Dow Beckham

Lewis & Clark College: Portland, OR, (2003); 8 x 12 inches, cloth, dust jacket; 316 pages. ISBN 0963086618. $50

Introduction and essays by the author; bibliography after the text by Doug Erickson, Jeremy Skinner and Paul Merchant. This first comprehensive bibliography of Lewis and Clark expedition publications in a century is based on the world-class collection of materials at the Aubrey R. Watzak Library of Lewis & Clark College. The book is divided into seven sections: the expedition's traveling library of scientific, technical, and cartographic material (1754-1804); related congressional documents and early notices (1803-1807); editions of Patrick Gass's journal (1807-1904); surreptitious accounts (1809-1846); the Biddle-Allen narrative of the expedition (1814-2001); nineteenth-century publications (1803-1905); and twentieth-century publications (1906-2001). In each section, introductory historical essays survey the large cast of characters who have contributed to the expedition story since the last years of the eighteenth century; bibliographies for each section list all known publications, with full annotated descriptions of primary texts. Lavishly illustrated with twenty-four full-page color plates and numerous black-and-white images from Lewis & Clark College's collection. [Book # 73443]

by C. Paul Christianson

The Bibliographical Society of America: New York, 1990; 8vo., cloth; 254 pages. ISBN 0914930117. $50

The history of the book trade in Medieval London before the age of print has long remained a matter of speculation. Few records survive that name the book artisans and entrepreneurs involved with this early trade venture or that document directly their methods of producing books and creating markets for them. In this directory, C. Paul Christianson assembles an extensive body of alternative data drawn from archival documents that identifies 262 participants in the London trade during a period of 200 years. This group includes stationers, manuscript artisans (called limners), textwriters, bookbinders, parchment sellers, and other London citizens active in book production and sale. This book provides a summary of information about the independent book craftsman working in London during this period. Four appendices contain indexes, and two maps, one modern and one from the sixteenth century, illustrate the historical area of the craft community around St. Paul's. Manuscripts and books cited are also listed. Designed by Abe Lerner. Distributed for the Bibliographical Society of America. [Book # 29985]

FLEMISH AND RELATED PAN-EL-STAMPED BINDINGS, EVIDENCE AND PRINCIPLES

by Staffan Fogelmark

The Bibliographical Society of America: New York, 1990; 4to., cloth; xviii, 252 pages. ISBN 9780914930143. $75

Ever since W. H. James Weale laid the foundations for the scholarly study of panel-stamped bindings in 1894, it has been universally assumed that the stamps were hand-engraved, and thus, that each panel was a unique artifact. However, Fogelmark discovered that virtually everything written since Weale's study has been based on a fundamental mistake. In Fogelmark's search for literature on blind panels, he had not been able to find a single item dealing with the all-important questions of production and technique. Fogelmark believes that one must understand the nature of the panel stamp and the basic rules that guided its use before discussing matters of attribution and iconography. He now presents decisive evidence that panel stamps were cast in metal rather than hand engraved and were often produced in multiple copies for wide distribution. Identical stamps could be used concurrently in different shops, different cities and even different countries. Fogelmark's research is based on many years research in a large number of European libraries and a detailed study of various technical and artistic features of the panels. This is a distinguished and highly original contribution to bookbinding history, which greatly extends knowledge extends knowledge of the late medieval booktrade. An exciting work, handsomely produced at The Stinehour Press. [Book # 32487]

THE BIBLIOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF AMERICA, 1904-79

A RETROSPECTIVE COLLECTION

Bibliographical Society of America: Charlottesville, (1980); 6 x 9.25 inches, hardcover, dust jacket; 568 pages. ISBN 0813908639. $35

To commemorate the 75th anniversary of the founding of the Bibliographical Society of America, this retrospective collection of articles seeks to represent, the diverse contributions of the members of the Society to its Papers of the Bibliographical Society of America. This volume contains 39 articles that strongly suggest that the practice of bibliography in America during the past 75 years cannot be easily categorized. Instead, the articles range over the spectrum of the world of books. An interesting characteristic of the selection is the preponderance of articles concerned with the relationship between books and people - especially with collectors. The collection begins with "A Plea for an Anatomical Method of Bibliography" by Victor Hugo. The first volume includes "Problems in Nineteenth-Century American Bibliography" by Rollo G. Silver and concludes with G. Thomas Tanselle's effective survey of the art, "The State of Bibliography Today" from the 73rd volume. [Book # 35489]

A REGISTER OF ARTISTS, ENGRAVERS, BOOK-SELLERS, BOOKBINDERS, PRINTERS & PUBLISH-ERS IN NEW YORK CITY, 1821-42

by Sidney F. Huttner & Elizabeth Stege Huttner

The Bibliographical Society of America: New York, 1993; 8.5 x 11 inches, hard-cover; 300 pages. ISBN 091493015X. $50

This register collects, from annual city directories, about 5,000 names and 50,000 addresses of individuals and firms working in New York in the book trades and graphic arts areas during the period 1821-1842. It continues George L. McKay's similar work, published by the New York Public Library in 1942, which collected the names of craftsmen and artisans to 1820. The recorded occupations, addresses, firm names and other dated information provide help in dating books, papers and pictures, and in identifying anonymous printers, publishers, artists, etc. It also provides a record of those who were engaged in more than 125 interconnected trades and professions, including calligraphers, compositors, editors, literary agents, map colorers, paper rulers, stereotypers, tract agents, wood engravers and many others. Though the bulk of the Register lists those active in printing, publishing and the distribution of books, the scope extends to all the graphic arts. The Register's listings linked to specific occupations are also brought together in one or more of 100 entries in an Index of Occupations. Institutions - libraries, museums, societies, book depositories, etc. - and periodicals are separately listed as well. [Book # 40525]

Caxton Club

THE CAXTON CLUB 1895-1995

CELEBRATING A CENTURY OF THE BOOK IN CHICAGO by Frank Piehl

The Caxton Club: Chicago, 1995; 8vo., gray cloth over boards with white stamping and paper label with slipcase; 224 pages. ISBN 0940550091. $75

The Caxton Club was founded in Chicago in January 1895 by fifteen bibliophiles. Its objective was the "literary study and promotion of the arts pertaining to the production of books" and "the occasional publishing of books designed to illustrate, promote and encourage these arts." One century later, the Club remains dedicated to this objective. It brings together a community of individuals who share the love of books and provides them a forum to educate one another on their content and design; and about the joys of reading them. In addition, their activities and existence have contributed a significant chapter to the history of book collecting in America with its changing tastes and the evolution of fine printing and fine binding over 100 years in Chicago. Caxton Club historian, Frank J. Piehl, offers a taste of the artistic, intellectual and literary atmosphere of Chicago from which the Caxton Club merged. According to Piehl, early bibliophiles concerned themselves not only with a book's contents, but also with the physical aspects of a book. In its 100 years, the Club has published 60 books that are distinguished by their content and design. Nineteen are important historical works, sixteen describe the history of printing and bookbindings, seven relate to bibliophiles and book collecting, and the remaining eighteen comprise a miscellany of poetry, literary works, plays, an opera and other items. Anyone who is interested in the history of book collecting, printing and bookbinding will enjoy this work. Designed by Caxtonian Bruce Beck and printed by R.R. Donnelley & Sons, the Caxton Club publishes this history of the Club that includes an up-to-date bibliography of the Club's publications, as well as biographies of Caxtonians who have contributed prominently to the advancement of the book and the club. Limited to 1,000 numbered and signed copies of which 900 are offered for sale. [Book # 41478]
